Description

The ‘business world’ requires employers who have the knowledge and skills to apply statistical techniques to a variety of business applications and decisions. Data Analysis has been designed to extend and build upon, both in depth and breadth, previous mathematical studies.

There are no formal entry requirements for this unit, but students are expected to have studied Mathematics to Year 11 standard or equivalent.

This is a core unit in the Monash College Diploma of Business, Part 1.

Prerequisites

MCD1700 – Introductory Mathematics
MCD1550 – Introductory Mathematics for Business (Business stream)
MCD1700 – Introductory Mathematics (Commerce stream)

Learning Outcomes

On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Distinguish between categorical and numerical data, construct and use frequency table, understand the meaning of mode and determine its value, construct and apply bar graphs, histograms and dot plots in writing statistical reports.
2. Decide how to describe a distribution with just one or two statistics, calculate, interpret and use median, distinguish between range and IQR, apply a five-number summary in statistical problems, construct and apply a box plot.
3. Calculate and interpret mean and standard deviation (using raw data, frequency or grouped frequency table), recognize the difference between the mean and median, apply the 68-95- 99.7% rule, understand and use standard scores, be familiar with a simple random sample and the way how it is formed.
4. Understand and interpret properties of probability, addition rule, conditional probability and independence, use Venn diagrams, tree diagrams and Karnaugh maps to determine probabilities for compound events.
5. Recognize statistical tools for displaying and describing relationships between two categorical variables, a categorical and a numerical variable and two numerical variables, understand the meaning of a causal relationship.
6. Understand how to use the relationship between two numerical variables for prediction, know what is linear regression, the meaning of the method of least squares, be aware of the three median line, recognize and apply interpolation and extrapolation.
7. Know the meaning of data transformation, comprehend the effect of applying a log, squared or reciprocal transformation to the x-variable and to the y-variable, how to choose a suitable transformation for the data, how to carry out a regression analysis with transformed data.

MCD1350 – Media Studies A: Film Studies

Description
The aim of this unit is to introduce students to some key theories which are explored in the first year communications core unit in Media Studies. This unit will introduce the key components of film studies theory, and will look at how film texts and industries can be analysed. By attending lectures and tutorials, completing prescribed readings, participating in class discussions, delivering oral presentations, practicing a range of different writing skills including contributing to an On-line Glossary, students will acquire a range of practical and conceptual skills which will prepare them for the first year Communication Studies sequence.

Prerequisites
Nil

Learning Outcomes
On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Be able to employ techniques to generate ideas, overcome writer's blocks, and structure argumentation.
2. Have acquired or revised basic concepts of grammar, punctuation, spelling, use and style, and be able to apply these in correcting faults and in developing exposition, authorial voice and expression in essays.
3. Have developed research skills in relation to primary, secondary and tertiary sources, both in hard copy and online sources.
4. Have developed professional practice in the skills of referencing, quoting, paraphrasing, and the avoidance of plagiarism.
5. Have developed techniques of argumentation by studying logic, fallacies, and techniques of persuasion and influence.
6. Have acquired skills in the genre of academic writing, such as expositional sequences, rhetorical strategies, register, audience, and authorial voice.
7. Have developed skills in drafting, redrafting, editing and proofreading.
8. Demonstrate an understanding of the impact that film-making and film-watching has on the ways we perceive ourselves individually and as a nation.
9. Demonstrate an understanding of the ways in which films are produced, distributed and exhibited.
10. Demonstrate an understanding of Mise-en-Scene and how it applies to the composition of the film.
11. Demonstrate an understanding of auteurship and be able to apply author theory in the reading of two films.
12. Demonstrate an understanding of the Narrative construction of film, and how plot and story, cause and effect, time and space contribute to the overall structure of the film.
13. Demonstrate an understanding of Genre by examining different film genres.
14. Demonstrate an understanding of the concepts of power and ideology through representations in film where certain groups of people are marginalized through misrepresentations or stereotyping.
15. Demonstrate a critical understanding of introductory Semiotics and how denotation, connotation and intertextuality explain the language of film.

MCD1360 – Media Studies B: Mass Communication and the Modern World

Description
The aim of this course is for students to learn how information and communication media have developed over time. This unit analyses the key components of mass communication studies theory, and examines how information and communications media have developed over time. The unit explores barriers to communication, as well as the ways in which different communication media and messages have impacted on different social and cultural groups. Through the completion of prescribed readings, class discussion, oral presentations and written essays, students will acquire the knowledge, concepts, and analytical skills which will prepare them for further study in the area of Media, Communication Studies and Journalism in Part Two of the Diploma of Arts.

Prerequisites

MCD1540 – Intercultural Business Communication

Description
This unit aims to assist you in developing strategies for effectively communicating and negotiating with individuals from other cultures.

Businesses today operate in a culturally diverse environment. This unit has been designed to develop your understanding of culture and its impact on business. We will examine the impact of culture on values, norms, attitudes, behaviours including patterns of communication. In this unit, you will learn effective ways to research cultures and communication styles in order to prepare for intercultural encounters as a student and in work. This unit will provide an opportunity to apply understanding of cultural and ethical issues to realistic business situations.

This is a core unit in the Monash College Diploma of Business, Part 1.

Prerequisites
Nil

Learning Outcomes
On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Demonstrate understanding of culture, communication and the issues involved in intercultural communication.
2. Apply intercultural communication skills and understanding of cultural issues involved in dealing with individuals from diverse cultures.
3. Define, describe and analyse the cultural values, norms, attitudes and behaviours that influence and impact on you and business in a globalised world.
4. Define your cultural identity and your view of the multicultural world.
5. Understand the important relationship between language and culture.
6. Improve your own level of cultural intelligence.
7. Conduct independent research related to intercultural theories and intercultural business.
8. Understand the need to think critically and assess the credibility of sources when conducting academic and business research.
9. Learn in collaboration with others, by sharing ideas and tasks.
10. Demonstrate ability to plan, prepare and present ideas in a manner appropriate to the academic and business worlds.

MCD1560 – Introduction to Journalism

Description

This unit aims to provide you with an overview of the role and influence of journalism in today’s society and to increase your understanding of its purpose and practice.

Journalism is a global industry that includes a range of media. Today’s journalists are required to understand the role of journalism in a society where information is shared.

In this unit we will explore the context in which journalism exists. You will study the expectations and obligations that the industry and public have of journalists. You will also explore your own use of the media and how this influences your writing. You will be introduced to six genres of media and will then research and study one of the genres in detail, allowing you to demonstrate your understanding of journalism and its role in 21st century society.

This is a core unit in the Monash College Diploma of Arts, Part 1.

Prerequisites

Nil

Learning Outcomes

On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Demonstrate an understanding of journalism as a profession.
2. Identify and define the purpose of different styles of journalistic writing.
3. Understand how journalists use writing and interviewing techniques for different media.
4. Demonstrate knowledge of the history and background of journalism in both Australian and International contexts.

On completion of this unit, students will have developed essential skills, so that they can:

1. Analyse a workplace context for journalists.
2. Critically analyse spoken and written texts in a range of media genres.
3. Research, write and present in a range of media genres.
4. Develop strategies involved in journalistic writing.

MCD1570 – Introduction to Academic Writing

Description
Today, students need to acquire skills and knowledge in reflective, descriptive and academic essay writing: these skills will be transferable to writing in all subjects students undertake both in Monash College and the University. Students also need to develop skills in academic reading, drafting and writing an academic essay, paraphrasing, quoting and referencing, and editing and proofreading. You will develop research skills and appropriate techniques in the use of sources (referencing, quoting, paraphrasing, and the avoidance of plagiarism). In using a range of written and audio/visual materials, you will have opportunities to apply and demonstrate your understanding of the various skills covered in this unit.

This unit will support students in building effective learning strategies using a range of thinking skills, learning approaches and assessment responses.

This is a core unit in the Monash College Diploma of Arts, Part 1.

Prerequisites
Nil

Learning Outcomes
On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Identify relevant skills appropriate to an Arts program.
2. Learn to take a deeper approach to reading and construct meaning from academic texts.
3. Understand the need to think critically and assess the credibility of both primary and secondary sources when conducting academic research.
4. Demonstrate skills in written and oral presentation, argument and analysis.
5. Demonstrate skills in critical analysis, including the ability to synthesise theories and concepts from a range of sources.
6. Learn to differentiate between academic and non-academic articles and papers.
7. Develop skills and enhanced abilities to conduct research.
8. Use Harvard referencing and effective summarising, quoting and paraphrasing techniques.
9. Effectively use appropriate electronic databases & internet sources in research and communication.
10. Learn techniques of formatting, editing and proofreading language, spelling and layout.
11. Learn to develop essays in academic style.
12. Demonstrate an awareness of different communication methods.

MCD1590 – The Modern World

Description
To make sense of what is happening in the world around us, you need to appreciate the complexity of how the world works and the way that everything around the world is connected to everything else. To achieve this, you will examine the relationships between historic and contemporary political, cultural and social forces, as well as the relationships between the major world religions and their influence on the modern world. This unit also examines the roles the mass media and the Internet play in shaping the modern world and in disseminating modern ideas around the world.

This unit will engage you in thinking about the myriad of problems confronting the modern world and how we can make sense of these problems in terms of the conflicts between ideas. Through the study of this unit, you will develop effective critical thinking skills in the way you think about the how the modern world ‘works’ and about your own place, as individuals, in the modern world.

This is a core unit in the Monash College Diploma of Arts, Part 1.

Prerequisites
Nil

Learning Outcomes
On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Define and discuss the key ideas and historical events that have shaped the modern world.
2. Critically analyse the conflicts between the ideas defined above.
3. Demonstrate through oral and written presentations, as well as classroom interaction, a heightened awareness of how these different ideas have led to the development of different cultures around the world.
4. Discuss the ethical issues involved in dealing with people from other cultures.
5. Demonstrate how contemporary events and issues in the modern world can be explained through the ideas examined in this unit.
6. Critically reflect on their own place in the modern world, and on what is asked of them as ‘modern’ individuals in the modern world.

MCD6020 – Media and Culture

Description
Media today operates in culturally diverse societies. In this unit you will be introduced to core concepts and theoretical traditions within media studies, including political economy, textual analysis, empirical studies and cultural studies. These are aligned with historical and contemporary examples of social, economic and political debates about media industries and audiences.

This unit aims to assist you in examining ways in which power and influence are exercised through media in cultural and social life.

This is a core unit in the Monash College Diploma of Arts, Part 2.

Prerequisites
Nil

Learning Outcomes
On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Demonstrate an appreciation of the historical development of media industries.
2. Recognise and be able to apply available frameworks for critically understanding the relationship between media, culture and society.
3. Demonstrate an understanding of the social, economic, political and cultural factors that shape the production, distribution and consumption of media.
4. Demonstrate an appreciation of the ways that the mass media contribute to understandings of the world.

MCD6040 – Professional Writing

Description

In this unit, we will focus on developing effective communication, particularly in written form, in professional contexts. We will study and produce types of writing and documents that are essential for you to secure professional employment, as well as to thrive in the workplace. The unit uses practical exercises to develop your abilities as a writer and editor of professional-standard texts, but is designed also to further your conceptual understanding of key issues in professional communication: audience, context, and language. We will also study principles of information-gathering for professional contexts, and put these into practice through activities and assignments.

This unit aims to assist you to develop professional writing and editing skills to the high standard expected by employers of university graduates. These skills will also help you to become the successful candidate when applying for employment both during and after your tertiary educational journey.

MCD6050 – Communications and Society

Description

The aim of this course is to provide the opportunity for students to explore what is meant by communication, how one can study communication practices and policies, mass communication technologies, and the significance that communication has to culture and society.

The underlying premise of this unit is that communication is an important aspect of contemporary life. A simple definition of communication is that it refers to all the different ways in which humans interact with each other through meaningful connection. Sometimes the meanings imparted through conversation or advertising are intentional; sometimes they exceed what was intended and the symbolic function of the message or object takes on a life of its own.

This unit provides a broad introduction to communications and media studies and its theoretical traditions and concepts, with a particular focus on contemporary communications and media industries and debates. It is designed to encourage students to apply their own individual and social contexts of communications and media to key theories of the discipline. Individual lectures are directed to providing basic theories and concepts within communications and media studies through an industry case study approach.

Prerequisites

MCD6020 – Media and Culture

Learning Outcomes

On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Employ techniques to generate ideas, overcome writer's blocks, and structure argumentation.
2. Have acquired or revised basic concepts of grammar, punctuation, spelling, use and style, and be able to apply these in correcting faults and in developing exposition, authorial voice and expression in essays.

MCD8010 – Understanding Learning and Learners

Description

The aim for this unit is for students to learn about contemporary learning theories that enable students to reflect on their own learning experiences in order to understand how others learn. From the perspective of broader educational settings (school, community, early childhood setting, home) the important question of what learning is: how and why learning occurs, what quality learning might be and what influences learning, are discussed and reflected upon.

Through examination of different theoretical perspectives and contexts, this unit focuses on building an understanding of what can influence learning and offers skill building in academic learning. Ideas closely associated with learning, including motivation, engagement and ability are also considered. The unit encourages the students to begin constructing deep knowledge about the relationship between learning and educational inquiry.

Prerequisites

Nil

Learning Outcomes

On completion of this unit, students should be able to:

1. Understand a range of theories of learning; ability and engagement; and their continuing impacts on education.
2. Reflect on themselves as learners and their own diverse experiences of learning and apply this understanding to other contexts.
3. Develop an awareness of the impact that diverse individual, social and cultural contextual factors have on learning experiences.
4. Begin to understand the role of educational inquiry in exploring aspects of learning in a range of settings including academic setting.

MCD8020 – Understanding Teaching for Learning

Description
This unit builds on the focus on learning and educational inquiry skills in MCD8010 Understanding Learning and Learners. It introduces contemporary approaches to teaching and ways to investigate such approaches. It encourages students to explore and examine teaching relationships including modes of communication, teaching models and strategies, as well as the management or organization of learning situations. From the perspective of broader educational settings (school, community, early childhood settings, home) learning and assessment tasks require students to analyse and reflect on teaching and learning processes within diverse educational contexts and consider the implications of the Australian curriculum on effective teaching and learning.

Prerequisites
MCD8010 – Understanding Learning and Learners

Learning Outcomes
On completion of this unit, students should be able to:
1. Develop an understanding of contemporary approaches to teaching and their impact on learning.
2. Reflect on the role of communication, teaching strategies, the management and organization of learning situations in promoting positive learning as well as teaching relationships.
3. Develop an awareness of the impact that diverse individual, social and cultural contextual factors have on teaching and learning.
4. Begin to understand the role of the teacher in exploring aspects of teaching and learning in a range of settings.
